

Collateral Consequences of Conviction Justice Project

Established by Los Angeles Mayor Garcetti in partnership with Loyola Law School

Collateral consequences of conviction are the dire consequences of a conviction that last far longer than a sentence itself. These consequences can prevent formerly incarcerated individuals from accessing employment and housing, reuniting with their families, or obtaining professional licenses.

The Collateral Consequences of Conviction Justice Project (CCCJP) provides free legal services to justice-affected individuals to overcome collateral consequences of conviction.
